

TWO JEWS, THREE OPINIONS: Building a Community of Compassion In an Era of Division

An Interactive BEKI Shabbaton
With Amy Alfred, PhD and Rabbi Eric Woodward

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 24

BEKI is a close-knit community. Sometimes, to avoid conflict, we keep our mouths shut. But disagreement is a core Jewish tradition, as is Kavod Hatzibur. We honor the congregation and each other by learning how to talk about differences.

Join us for an interactive workshop led by Amy Alfred, PhD, and Rabbi Eric Woodward. We will learn skills to enhance dialogue, mutual respect, and understanding.

Let's deepen our connections and strengthen our community.

-
- 11:00AM (approx) Rabbi Woodward will deliver a D'var Torah during Shabbat morning services
 - 12:45-2:45pm Shabbat Schmooze: interactive program with Dr. Alfred and Rabbi Woodward, introducing core principles that can enhance civil discourse about difficult topics
 - 7-8:45pm Dr. Alfred will lead a deeper conversation building on the D'var and Schmooze. Register using link or QR code below

All members of the BEKI community are encouraged to attend this free program

Register here

or scan

or email office@beki.org