BEKI Honors Rabbis in the Pews

Richard Eisenberg  Murray Levine  Alan Lovins  Lina Zerbarini

One is a clinical psychologist who specializes in helping family businesses. One retired from his pulpit nearly two decades ago, only to throw himself into community activities, from chaplaincy to tutoring. One leads college students in meditation on Yom Kippur and on service trips during spring break. One works with people recovering from drug and alcohol addiction.

As different as their current paths are, these four people – Alan Lovins, Murray Levine, Lina Zerbarini, and Richard Eisenberg – have much in common. All are rabbis. All have found a spiritual home at BEKI – not in the pulpit but in the pews, as members of the congregation.

And, at a tribute dinner on May 2, BEKI will honor all four for their leadership, service, and dedication to healing the world.

The four rabbis have taken different directions in their professional lives, and different routes to joining New Haven’s only Conservative shul.

Murray Levine, for example, retired to New Haven 17 years ago after leading a congregation in Framingham, Massachusetts. He arrived at BEKI around the same time as our beloved rabbi, Jon-Jay Tilsen.

“I wanted Jon-Jay to feel comfortable” in his new position, Levine recalls. “So I invited him to my house for coffee and said, ‘I want you to be the rabbi. If anybody comes to me with questions, I will send them right to you.’”

The younger man and the older became friends, as did their wives, Miriam Benson and Malka Levine. When Malka was...

gravely ill a few years later, “Jon-Jay visited her on her death bed in our home and comforted her,” Levine remembers. “He said, ‘I love you. We love you. We’ll miss you.’”

This, Rabbi Levine says, is his favorite BEKI story.

Levine himself knows much about offering comfort and support: in his retirement, he has served as a hospital chaplain, led a Talmud study group for rabbis, and tutored a Russian immigrant in English for the past 12 years – for free.

His fellow honorees are likewise devoted to community service.

Lovins, who formerly led a congregation in Derby, now spends his work hours guiding families, couples, and individuals through some of life’s tricky spots, both business-related and personal. In his time off, he guides fellow congregants in BEKI’s Shabbat learners’ minyan for adults. Lovins spent many years on BEKI’s board of directors, including a stint as vice president, and has been active for decades in the peace movements in America and Israel.

“There is no more important job than to lead a community to perpetuate Judaism, to push us toward ethical living, and to encourage us be a force for morality,” Lovins says. “Making the world a better place is the most important function of our religion.”

Zerbarini, associate rabbi and director of operations at Yale University’s Jewish center, couldn’t agree more. In her work with students, she focuses on engaging them in local and international service projects -- spring break programs in New Haven and in Latin America, for example -- and on intergroup cooperation, including dialogue with Muslim students.

“Rabbi Lina” also initiated yoga and meditation services aimed at helping students connect to Judaism in nontraditional ways.

“Most Jews aren’t found in synagogues,” she notes. “It’s important to be with Jews ba-asheer hu (hem) sham, where they are.”

Eisenberg left the pulpit of Congregation B’na Jacob in Woodbridge three years ago to pursue a new way of helping: treatment and education for people struggling with addiction.

“I hope I bring Jewish/rabbinic values of concern and compassion to this special population,” Eisenberg observes. “I see it as a kind of kiddush Ha-Shem, or sanctification of God’s name.

Eisenberg also holds a part-time position as spiritual leader of Beth El Synagogue in Torrington. When he’s not in the pulpit on Shabbat and holidays, he divides his time between BEKI and B’na Jacob, where he continues to be involved and enjoy many friendships: “As far as I’m concerned, the more synagogues I’m involved with, the more nourishment I get for my neshama.”

BEKI’s traditional, egalitarian, participatory approach attracts many of its members – and these four rabbis are no exception.

“I appreciate the opportunity for full participation that BEKI offers to all its members,” Zerbarini says. “BEKI is not an experience of ‘performance Judaism,’ with the rabbi intoning from the bima while the congregation sits passively.”

“Many members are well-educated Jewishly and sincerely practicing Jews, which makes the level of discourse more meaningful,” Lovins adds. “The spirit of inclusivity is also very attractive to me.”
Talented Women in our Midst

Despite their growing role in defining contemporary Jewish identity, Jewish American women artists remain hidden in plain sight. BEKI will spotlight the achievements and genesis of Jewish women’s art in a program entitled “Tradition and Women’s Empowerment in Modern Art,” Sunday, April 18, 9:45 a.m.-12:30 p.m. in the BEKI Upstairs Social Hall.

The brunch event will begin with a lecture by Margaret Olin, Senior Research Scholar at Yale Divinity School. It will be followed by a panel discussion among four of the many noted Jewish women artists in our community: Cynthia Beth Rubin, Mary Lesser, Jeanette Kuvin Oren and Judy Sirota Rosenthal, and will conclude with a 12:30 p.m. opening of an exhibit of their artwork.

Margaret Olin, who is keynoting the program, holds a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. She has written broadly about art theory, Jewish art, and the cultural impact of the visual arts. Among her published books are The Nation Without Art: Examining Modern Discourses in Jewish Art (University of Nebraska Press, 2001) and Monuments and Memory, Made and Unmade (University of Chicago Press, 2003), which she co-edited. Before coming to Yale in 2009, where she is associated with the departments of Jewish Studies and Art, she spent 13 years as a professor at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago.

The four panelists each have had long and fruitful careers as professional artists based in the New Haven area. Their art has evolved continually, as they have explored expression in new and varied media.

Cynthia Beth Rubin, a BEKI member whose stained glass window graces the Harrison Street entrance to the synagogue, coordinated the recent Orchard Street Shul Cultural Heritage Project. She has developed a signature style in digital media over the past three decades, creating images that reflect “how cultural traditions collide and merge, and how this is embedded in all of us.” The recipient of the first individual artist’s grant in New Media from the Connecticut Commission on the Arts, she has also received numerous other awards, served on several college faculties and is currently affiliated with the Rhode Island School of Design.

Mary Lesser, also a member of BEKI, has created a significant, lifetime portfolio of artwork since childhood, in addition to her accomplishments as a Yale Law School trained attorney. She brings a unique perspective to the immigrant experience and family narratives through her use of various media to transform old photographs. She reflects, “I hope that the viewer will be challenged to invest his or her own narrative in response to the images.”

Jeanette Kuvin Oren, who is well-known for her Judaic art, has been commissioned to create Torah covers, Huppot, Ark curtains, mosaics, stained glass windows and wall-hangings by more than 300 synagogues, schools and community centers across the United States, South America, Canada and Israel. Although Jeanette earned degrees from Princeton University and Yale University, she chose 25 years ago to commit herself full-time to a career in Jewish art over one in epidemiology.

Judy Sirota Rosenthal is a multi-faceted artist whose work ranges from photography and prints to mixed media sculpture and site-specific installations. She has created award-winning art that explores basic human experiences and our relationship to the Unknown. Her work, both provoking and comforting, has been exhibited in many museums across North America. Her photography has been used to document the work of Project Kesher in Russia and the Ukraine as well as Bali-Hindu culture.

This will be BEKI’s third Women of Vision program, the first of which featured programming about Jewish women’s involvement in the Civil Rights Movement and the second of which highlighted their influence on social issues locally and abroad, including a lecture by American Jewish World Service director Ruth Messinger. The Program is supported by a grant from the Women of Vision Society of the Jewish Foundation of Greater New Haven.
Community Forum on Advocating for Israel

On Thursday, April 22, at 7 p.m., Congregation Beth El - Keser Israel will host a community-wide forum on “Peace and Security: Diverse Views on Advocating for Israel.” The event is being co-sponsored by the Jewish Community Relations Council of the Jewish Federation of Greater New Haven. This program will be free and open to the public.

The forum will explore a range of options for American Jews with respect to advocating for and supporting Israel. Given the complexity of the conflict and the diversity of opinion within the pro-Israel American Jewish community, the program will encourage members of the Jewish community to listen to and learn from each other, looking for common ground and for ways to work together towards our common goal of peace and security for Israel. There will be ample opportunity for questions and answers.

Participants in the program will be:

Asaf Shariv, Consul General, Israel Consulate, New York

Rob Leikind, Director, Boston Regional Office, American Jewish Committee

Rachel A. Lerner, Chief of Staff, J Street, Washington, D.C.

Steven D. Fraade, Mark Taper Professor of the History of Judaism, Yale University (moderator)

Asaf Shariv has been Israel’s Consul General in New York since August 2007. Prior to his appointment, Shariv was the Director of Media and Public Affairs to Prime Ministers Ehud Olmert and Ariel Sharon, where his responsibilities included supervising the Government’s Press Office and Advertising Bureau. He was also the spokesman for various government agencies, such as the Institute for Intelligence and Special Operations (Mossad), the Atomic Energy Committee, the National Security Committee and the Counter-Terrorism Unit.

Rob Leikind has been Director of the American Jewish Committee’s Boston office since 2008. He previously served as Senior Vice-President of Hebrew College in Boston, as New England regional director of the Anti-Defamation League, and as Director of the Connecticut office of the ADL in New Haven. Prior to entering Jewish communal service, Leikind served as an Assistant District Attorney for the Eastern District of Massachusetts.

Rachel A. Lerner joined J Street after having worked for the Jewish community for close to ten years. Most recently she was Director of Strategic Community Planning Initiatives at the Jewish Federation of Greater Toronto. Prior to that, Lerner was Director of the Israel Advocacy Initiative at the Jewish Council for Public Affairs in New York. Lerner spent her freshman undergraduate year in Israel at Bar Ilan University, as well as a summer studying at the Pardes Institute in Jerusalem.

Service and Candle Lighting Times for Pesah

On the seventh and eighth days of Pesah, April 5 and 6, festival services begin at 9:15 a.m.

Candle lighting for the seventh day, Monday, April 5, is at 7:02 p.m., and on Tuesday night, April 6 after 8:03.

Shir HaShirim – Song of Songs

The Biblical love poetry of Shir HaShirim - Song of Songs will be read on the morning of Shabbat Hol HaMoed Pesah April 3 during the morning service. Tradition ascribes the work to King Solomon himself, writing 2,900 years ago. Celebrate the spring holiday of Pesah with this beautiful and moving reading.

Yizkor Memorial Service

The Yizkor Memorial Service will be held during the 9:15 a.m. Festival morning service on Tuesday, April 6. The Festival service includes a Shaharit morning service, Hallel (Psalms of praise), a Torah reading and Haftara, and the Musaf additional service, and concludes by noon. The Yizkor memorial service is one of four such services during the year that help us recognize our feelings of loss, which are often especially intense during the Pesah season, and to honor the memories of our loved ones.

Yom HaShoah

Sisterhood is selling yellow Holocaust memorial candles again this year. Candles may be purchased from the Sisterhood Giftshop on Sundays 11 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. when Religious School is in session, or call the BEKI Office (203) 389-2108 x 14.

The New Haven community Yom HaShoah commemoration will be held on Sunday, April 11 at 4 p.m. at the JCC.

Yom HaZikaron, Yom HaAtzma’ut

Yom HaZikaron, Israeli Memorial Day, is observed Sunday, April 18; Yom HaAtzma’ut, Israel Independence Day, on Monday, April 19. These back-to-back holidays recognize the combination of suffering and joy, of sacrifice and achievement that often necessarily come together in our lives.

All of these days are marked liturgically in public worship at BEKI.

USY News

J-Serve – April 25

“J-Serve is the National Day of Jewish Youth Service. J-Serve provides teens with the opportunity to fulfill the Jewish values of gimilut hasadim, acts of loving kindness, tzedakah, just and charitable giving, and tikun olam, the responsibility to repair the world. Across the globe, all on one day, teens will join each other to make their community and the world a better place.” (jserve.org)

It is a great day for teens to get together and have fun while also fulfilling the mitzvah of repairing the world. It is going to be a day filled with lots of activity, hard work, and fulfillment. I encourage everyone to participate to help our community thrive. Don’t let this opportunity pass you by; instead get in line and join the fun!

Shabbat Shalom Learners’ Minyan

The “Shabbat Shalom Learners’ Minyan,” which meets every other Saturday at 10:45 a.m. in the office, is an ideal setting for veteran and novice shul-goers alike to become more comfortable and proficient in the Shaharit (morning) and Torah services in a supportive setting. Expertly led by Steven Fraade, Rabbi Alan Lovins, Rabbi Murray Levine, Isaiah Cooper and others, the Shabbat Shalom Learners’ Minyan is a nurturing exploration of practice and theory presented in a participatory, non-threatening and multi-generational setting. Many members who take advantage of this unique offering feel a deeper sense of awe born of increased understanding and appreciation of the services. Everyone is welcome to participate regardless of religious status or background.

Sundays

Sunday Talmud with Moshe Meiri

Adults and advanced youth are invited to bask in the light of Talmud on Sunday mornings with Moshe Meiri. The third chapter of masekhet Baba Qama (“First Gate”) serves as the base text. This spring series meets on consecutive Sunday mornings from 10:30 until noon, according to the Religious School schedule. For more information, contact Moshe at moshe@snet.net.

Mondays

Rashi Study Group

Each Monday morning from 7:45 to 8:30 adults meet in the Library Chapel to read Rashi’s commentary on the Torah. It is possible to join the study group for a single meeting or to begin at any time. Knowledge of Hebrew is not necessary. Rashi purported to explain the peshat of the text, i.e., the meaning in its historical, literary and linguistic context. Visitors and new participants are welcome. The Rashi Study Group meets immediately following the 7 a.m. shaharit service.

Wednesdays

Word for the Day

The Wednesday morning service (shaharit) includes a 60-second “Hebrew word for the day” to promote the learning of Hebrew. The Hebrew language is highly structured. Most words are based on three-letter roots, and are made with a limited set of verb or noun forms. By learning a few dozen roots and a small set of word-forms, it is possible to roughly translate Hebrew words isolated from any context, something not normally possible in English.

Rabbis’ Study Group

Wednesdays with Murray is a weekly study group exclusively for rabbis, facilitated by Rabbi Murray Levine. The Wednesday study group affords local rabbis an opportunity to pursue their own talmud torah (Torah study) in a “safe” setting and with opportunities to learn from each other’s experience and insight. The study group meets Wednesday mornings in the Rosenkrantz Family Library. For more information, call Rabbi Murray Levine at (203) 397-2513.

Mini Maariv Learning Service

The Wednesday evening services during the school year are supplemented with commentary and teaching relating to the history, themes, choreography and language of the daily evening service. Minha & Maariv services are from 5:45 to 6:15 each weekday, and at 6 p.m. on Fridays, and 20 minutes before sundown on Shabbat (Saturday) afternoons.

Thursdays

Sanhedrin Talmud Study Group

The Sanhedrin Talmud Study Group meets weekly on Thursdays during the lunch hour (12:30 to 1:30) in BEKI’s Rosenkrantz Family Library. The Group has met weekly since 1999. For some participants, this is their first direct experience with Talmud text; for others, it is a continuation of a long journey. The Group focuses on the issues raised in the Talmud, with less attention to the technical aspects of the text. Knowledge of Hebrew or Aramaic is helpful but not required. For information, contact Isaiah Cooper at his law office icooper@cooperlaw.net.

Every Day

Divrei Torah on the Web

A collection of Divrei Torah (Torah commentaries) and essays by members and Rabbi Tilsen are posted on BEKI’s website under “Adult Studies” and “Meet Rabbi Tilsen.”

Thank you to everyone who helped put The Model Seder for People with Special Needs together on March 24. Led by Dr. Lauren Kempton, the food was provided by ACI Catering; eggs were provided by Soffer Farms; guests and transportation coordinated by Jewish Family Service and our BEKI Sisterhood women serving, setting up and hosting. A great learning experience was had by all who helped make this a very positive event.

Applications for the Marcel Gutman Youth Scholarship are now available in the literature rack in the lobby. Teens in grades 8-12 who are going to Israel or engaging in a Jewish Youth Program during the summer or next academic year are eligible. Parent or guardian must be a Sisterhood member. For more details please contact Mimi Glenn.

Light a yellow candle to remember those who perished during the Holocaust. Yom HaShoah is the 27th of Nisan, April 11 in the evening and candles can be purchased at the synagogue in the gift shop or from the BEKI office.

Patronize our gift shop for “Made in Israel” gifts and merchandise – Celebrate Yom HaAtzma’ut on April 20 with Sisterhood and Hadassah and Yom Yerushalayim on May 12 and Mother’s Day on May 9. Open Sunday 11 a.m. to noon and Peggy can help you during the week.
