Maytal Saltiel

What Ruth Can Teach Us About Hesed
(8:30p)

Maytal Saltiel has been working in the Yale Chaplain’s Office since 2013. Her work is primarily focused around interreligious dialogue, pastoral care, working with smaller religious groups, helping students develop their own faith and sense of meaning, and helping everyone breathe a little deeper. She works with the InterFaith Forum at Yale (IFFY), Chaplain’s Office Peer Liaisons, Chaplaincy Fellows, Feasting on Faith, Study Breaks and weekly book groups. Prior to coming to Yale, Maytal worked as the Repair the World Coordinator at Penn Hillel.

Rachel Adelstein

Sounding Genocide & Resistance in the Holocaust (9:45p)

Rachel Adelstein is an ethnomusicologist whose research and teaching covers contemporary Jewish liturgical music, artistic expressions of Jewish feminism and American vernacular musics. Rachel will explore the use of music under the Nazi regime, by the inmates of the Terezín concentration camp, and by the inmates of other ghettos and concentration camps, as well as members of Jewish resistance groups.

Nadav Berman Shifman

The Non-Triviality of Mishna Avot 5:16 Or: Why Disinterestedness Is Interesting (11p)

Nadav Berman Shifman is a Postdoctoral Associate at Yale University researching Jewish Thought, classical American Pragmatism, and humanistic philosophy of Technology.

The shiurim and Tiqun conclude after midnight. *Doors locked – from the inside – for security purposes at 11p, meaning the door attendant might not be allowing participants to enter after that hour, but you can always get out, if so determined.

Cameras, phones and recording equipment is strictly prohibited in these sessions. If you are a first-responder or have other emergency needs, please consult Rabbi Tilsen or Peggy Hackett for arrangements.
